

In the editorial section, Walter Johnson et al. (634) explain why a global response is needed to prevent and treat stroke. Bernadette Abela-Ridder et al. (635) announce a new rabies vaccine stockpile.

Gary Humphreys and Fiona Fleck (638–639) report on efforts to address antimicrobial resistance, from national programmes to the United Nations General Assembly. Malcolm Molyneux tells Fiona Fleck (640–641) about the challenges countries face with the first introduction of a malaria vaccine.

Treating malnourished children in hospital

Kirkby D Tickell and Donna M Denno (642–651) review WHO guidelines on severe acute malnutrition.

Improved finances, improved health

Lois Orton et al. (694–704) review the evidence for health impacts of microfinance schemes.

Tracing an arbovirus

Mary Kay Kindhauser et al. (675–686) establish the historical record of Zika virus prior to the current epidemic.

Detecting rare complications

Nirmal Kandel et al. (705–708) propose using polio surveillance systems for Zika-associated Guillain-Barré syndrome.

Paying for vaccines

Tim Crocker-Buque and Sandra Mounier-Jack (687–693) gather stakeholders' perspectives of a finance facility.